Relief Sought

IAW R.C.M. 917 the Defense respectfully requests that the court dismiss Charge I, and the specification thereunder. Pleadings in military practice are in the nature of an information and may, subject to some limitations, be amended at any time prior to findings, if the accused is not prejudiced. See David A. Schlueter, Military Criminal Justice, Section 6-1(B)(2). Before arraignment, minor changes may be made by anyone, except the Article 32 officer, who has acted upon or forwarded the charges. Id. Citing cases therein.

After arraignment, the military judge must approve the changes, and he may do so only if a substantial right of the accused is not prejudiced. RCM 603(C). Amendments are normally not used to cure minor deficiencies. United States v. Loving, 41 MJ 213 (CAAF 1994)(changing information concerning employer of murder victim was minor change; focus was on identification of victim not the employer).

Thus, where the government alleges a charge that the accused killed a certain person, the government is bound by proving that charge and it constitutes a major variance or amendment to the charge.

Here, SSGT Werst was charged with the premeditated murder of one Nasser Ismail. The government has not put forward any evidence that Mr. Ismail was, in fact, murdered. A motion for a finding of not guilty is, thus, ripe and meritorious. To substitute "an unknown Iraqi male" for "Nasser Ismail" would constitute a major amendment. Loving, 41 MJ 213; see also United States v. Moreno, 46 MJ 216 (1997).

Allowing a variance or amendment that includes "an unknown Iraqi male" would virtually expand the number of individuals he would be accused of the premeditated murder of to literally millions. Even if the court rejects this argument, the accused was prejudiced in defending against the murder of Nasser Ismail in that the Government introduced evidence of another killing, on the same night, in the same village, within 30 minutes of the alleged death of on Nasser Ismail by US forces.

Thus an amendment to the charge would be major and prejudice the Accused and should not be allowed. The Government has failed to prove the death of one "Nasser Ismail" and thus grounds for a motion for a finding of not guilty under R.C.M. 917 should be granted.

				RECOGNIZ	ED R

In the specification of Charge I, the accused is charged with the offense of premeditated murder in violation of Article 118 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. In order to find the accused guilty of this offense, you must be convinced by legal and competent evidence beyond reasonable doubt:

- (1) That Naser Ismail is dead;
- (2) That his death resulted from the act of the accused by shooting him with a rifle at or near Balad, Iraq on or about 3 January 2004;
- (3) That the killing of Naser Ismail by the accused was unlawful; and
- (4) That, at the time of the killing, the accused had a premeditated design to kill Naser Ismail.

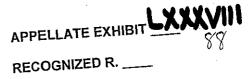

The killing of a human being is unlawful when done without legal justification or excuse. "Premeditated design to kill" means the formation of a specific intent to kill and consideration of the act intended to bring about death. The "premeditated design to kill" does not have to exist for any measurable or particular length of time. The only requirement is that it must precede the killing.

The court is further advised that the offense of unpremeditated murder is a lesser included offense of the offense set forth in the specification of Charge 1. When you vote, if you find the accused not guilty of the offense charged, that is premeditated murder, then you should consider the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder, also in violation of Article 118, UCMJ. In order to find the accused guilty of this lesser offense, you must be convinced by legal and competent evidence beyond reasonable doubt:

- (1) That Naser Ismail is dead;
- (2) That his death resulted from the act of the accused by shooting him with a rifle at or near Balad, Iraq on or about 3 January 2004;
- (3) That the killing of Naser Ismail by the accused was unlawful; and
- (4) That, at the time of the killing, the accused had the intent to kill or inflict great bodily harm upon Naser Ismail.

The intent to kill or inflict great bodily harm may be proved by circumstantial evidence, that is, by facts or circumstances from which you may reasonably infer the existence of such an intent. Thus, it may be inferred that a person intends the natural and probable results of an act he purposely does. Therefore, if a person does an intentional act which is likely to result in death or great bodily harm, it may be inferred that he intended to inflict death or great bodily harm. The drawing of this inference is not required.

"Great bodily harm" means serious bodily injury. "Great bodily harm" does not mean minor injuries, such as a black eye or bloody nose, but does mean fractured or dislocated bones, deep cuts, torn parts of the body, serious damage to internal organs, and other serious bodily injuries.

The evidence has raised the issue of defense of another in relation to the offense of unpremeditated murder and the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder.

Defense of another is a complete defense to the offenses of premeditated murder and the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder.

A person may use force in defense of another only if that other person could have lawfully used such force in defense of himself under the same circumstances. Therefore, if PFC Stewart was also an aggressor, intentionally provoked an attack, or a mutual combatant then the accused could not lawfully use force in his behalf regardless of the accused's understanding of the situation.

For defense of another to exist, the accused must have had a reasonable belief that death or grievous bodily harm was about to be inflicted on the person defended, and, the accused must have actually believed that the force he used was necessary to protect that person. In other words, defense of another has two parts. First, the accused must have had a reasonable belief that death or grievous bodily harm was about to be inflicted on PFC Stewart. The test here is whether, under the same facts and circumstances, a reasonably prudent person, faced with the same situation, would have believed that death or grievous bodily harm was about to be inflicted. Second, the accused must have actually believed that the amount of force he used was necessary to protect against death or grievous bodily harm. To determine the accused's actual belief as to the amount of force necessary, you must view the situation through the eyes of the accused. In addition to what was known to the accused at the time, you should consider all the applicable evidence presented in determining his actual belief as to the amount of force necessary to protect PFC Stewart.

The burden is on the prosecution to establish the guilt of the accused. Unless you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused did not act in defense of another, you must acquit the accused of the offense of premeditated murder and the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder.

The evidence has raised the issue of self-defense in relation to the offense of premeditated murderand the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder.

Self-defense is a complete defense to the offenses of premeditated murder and unpremeditated murder.

For self-defense to exist, the accused must have had a reasonable apprehension that death or grievous bodily harm was about to be inflicted on himself and he must have actually believed that the force he used was necessary to prevent death or grievous bodily harm.

In other words, self-defense has two parts. First, the accused must have had a reasonable belief that death or grievous bodily harm was about to be inflicted on himself. The test here is whether, under the same facts and circumstances present in this case, an ordinary prudent adult person faced with the same situation would have believed that there were grounds to fear immediate death or serious bodily harm. Second, the accused must have actually believed that the amount of force he used was required to protect against death or serious bodily harm. To determine the accused's actual belief as to the amount of force which was necessary, you must look at the situation through the eyes of the accused. In addition to what was known to the accused at the time, you should consider all the applicable evidence presented in determining his actual belief as to the amount of force necessary to protect PFC Stewart.

The burden is on the prosecution to establish the guilt of the accused. Unless you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused did not act in defense of another, you must acquit the accused of the offense of premeditated murder and the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder.

The prosecution's burden of proof to establish the guilt of the accused not only applies to the elements of the offense of premeditated murder and the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder, but also to the issue of self-defense. In order to find the accused guilty you must be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused did not act in self-defense.

The accused, under pressure of a fast moving situation or immediate attack, is not required to pause at his peril to evaluate the degree of danger or the amount of force necessary to protect himself or another soldier. In deciding the issue of self defense and defense of another, you must give careful consideration to the violence and rapidity, if any, involved in the incident.

In the specification of Charge II, the accused is charged with the offense of obstructing justice in violation of Article 134 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. In order to find the accused guilty of this offense, you must be convinced by legal and competent evidence beyond reasonable doubt:

- (1) That at or near Balad, Iraq, on or about 3 January 2004, the accused wrongfully did a certain act, that is, directed PFC Nathan Stewart and SPC Charles Pannell to alter their statements regarding the murder of Naser Ismail;
- (2) That the accused did so in the case of himself against whom the accused had reason to believe there were or would be criminal proceedings pending;
- (3) That the act was done with the intent to impede the due administration of justice;
- (4) That, under the circumstances, the conduct of the accused was to the prejudice of good order and discipline in the armed forces or was of a nature to bring discredit upon the armed forces; and
- (5) The accused had reason to believe that PFC Nathan Stewart and SPC Charles Pannell would be called upon to provide evidence as a witness.

Conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline is conduct which causes a reasonably direct and obvious injury to good order and discipline. Service discrediting conduct is conduct which tends to harm the reputation of the service or lower it in public esteem.

"Wrongfully" means without legal justification or excuse.

One can obstruct justice in relation to a criminal proceeding involving himself.

While the prosecution is required to prove beyond a reasonable doubt the accused had the specific intent to impede the due administration of justice, there need not be an actual obstruction of justice.

"Criminal proceedings" includes such things as criminal investigations conducted by police or command authorities, Article 15 nonjudicial punishment proceedings, Article 32 investigations, and courts-martial.

Criminal proceedings do not include administrative proceedings or inspections.

It is not necessary that charges be pending or even that an investigation be underway. The government must, however, prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused had reason to believe there were or would be criminal proceedings against himself or that some law enforcement official of the military would be investigating the accused's actions.
